That's right! This is the correct location for calcium, which has two electrons in its first energy level, eight electrons in its second energy level, eight electrons in its third energy level, and two electrons in its fourth energy level.

You have correctly placed all 12 mystery elements!